

Teach Your Passion

Have you ever thought about changing careers to teach your passion? Inspiring students with your experience as a professional? You can make a difference! If you love math or science and enjoy working with young people, a career in education may be right for you. Now is the time to make the change and become a teacher.

Missouri's Alternative Teacher Certification Programs will help you transition into teaching. These new programs prepare individuals with a bachelor's degree in science, mathematics or related fields to teach in middle or high school. In as little as 15 months, you can earn a master's degree in education while becoming certified to teach science or mathematics for grades 5 through 12.
